MISSIONARY UPDATE
10/29/26

Kevin & Kaori Laverman
WorldVenture | Japan

The Japanese say "ARIGATO" (thank you) a LOT. Sure, the gratitude is sometimes just a cultural habit to keep harmony, but I think it warrants this question... If a 99% UNREACHED nation can show such frequent gratitude, how much more should WE — who know and love a GOOD, good God — express it?

ARIGATO God, I'm thankful for the many foreigners in Kawasaki and opportunities You keep opening up to serve and influence this mission field.

ARIGATO. I'm thankful for the Singapore team that came, bringing their time and talent, and blessing us as a new little church in numerous practical ways.

God, ARIGATO, thank you for the opportunity to connect with a dozen Japanese families in the neighborhood through our August Summer Special.

Lord, ARIGATO! I'm thankful for COVID antiviral meds that sped recovery in September when traveling in the US and were able to see family, churches, support partners, and friends on either end of our unintended quarantine.

God, ARIGATO for the local woman who received our church flyer, prayerposted, in her mailbox, contacted us, and came to our Joyful English Cafe last week, and for the church in Phoenix with an ESL ministry that planted a seed in her years ago that the church can be a safe, welcoming environment.

Lord, when the September typhoon brought some SERIOUS rain and a drainage issue for us, I am grateful for the man who prioritized our house, came out in the EXTREME weather, unclogged our storm sewer pipe of random debris, and got things working, even as he himself was soaked to the bone...and yet said ARIGATO. ARIGATO, God, for him!

And so much more!
